Jane Dickinson-Scott started her career as a social worker working with children, and young people, single mums from deprived and broken homes and families in difficult life situations. That love for humanity, and her growing love for God, led her into the full time public practice of Christian Science healing. Alongside her healing work she served as a Prison Minister for six years. She is also a teacher of Christian Science and an international speaker giving inspirational talks on different topics to people of all ages.
